MRS. HALL CHOKED BY SLAYER?

Minister's Prosecutor Says Autopsy Showed Pear-Shaped Throat Mark

Kennebunk, Me., Aug. 29.—The autopsy on the body of Mrs. Minnie Stevens Hall showed marks on her throat as of a clutching human hand.

This was one of several accusations buried at Henry H. Hall, pastor of the Union Baptist Church at Wells Depot, by County Attorney Franklin B. Chesley of York County at the preliminary hearing of Hall in the Kennebunk Opera House today on the charge of wife murder.

Hall claims his wife received her fatal injuries on June 11 by falling from a railroad trestle while out walking with him at Wells Depot.

THE STATE'S ACCUSATION.

Mr. Chesley, in his opening address today, asserted that the State would show:

That Hall was responsible for his wife's death.

That the character of the wounds on Mrs. Hall were not such as could have been self-inflicted.

The county attorney declared, "The autopsy disclosed, in addition to other wounds, a pear-shaped imprint and ruptured blood vessel on the woman's throat, over her windpipe.

"These imprints appeared to have been made by clutching, as of a human hand, on the woman's throat.

"It was impossible that such pres-

Enlistments in Navy and Marines Off for Rest of War

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Voluntary enlistments in the Navy and Marine Corps have been abolished for the duration of the war, Secretary Daniels announced today. He had already suspended enlistments pending the passage of the man power act.

The secretary made it plain, however, that men may be inducted into the naval service at their own request, following their registration under the new act. Plans to permit this procedure are being worked out, it was said, by Secretaries Daniels and Baker, together with the President, and will be announced shortly.

"In all events," said Secretary Daniels, "the Navy and Marine Corps will be enabled to fill their necessary quotas with the same class of men they were getting under the voluntary enlistment service. The draft will make this possible."

120,000 TAKEN BY THE ALLIES SINCE JULY 18

By EARLE C. REEVES.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Aug. 29 (3:20 p. m.).—Approximately 120,000 prisoners and 2,000 guns have been taken by the Allies on the western front since July 18, the International News Service learned today.

The tactics of the enemy indicate that the Germans are fighting with the idea in view of using up all the good weather in their retreat. Their new line of defence is expected to be from the Ailette river, where it is intersected by the Oise, northward to the Somme and Tortilier rivers.

It remains to be seen, however, whether or not General Hindenburg will be able to execute such a gradual retirement in the face of the steady pressure from the advancing allied armies.

703 Auto Drivers Taken as 'Drunk' During Year

The drunken auto driver scourge, admittedly the most dangerous menace to life and limb on the highways of the State, has grown to alarming proportions.

During the past twelve months 703 auto drivers were arrested by the police on the charge of "driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor."

This is a jump of 61 per cent.

In the preceding twelve months the number of arrests was 435.

Another increasing evil, pointed out by the Massachusetts Highway Commission today, is the reckless driver who strikes and runs away. Their report shows that 116 of "these cowardly drivers" were apprehended by the police within a year.

While complimenting the police on their watchfulness, the commission said: "It is feared, however, that the authors of many more serious accidents escaped."

Eighteen per cent. of the arrests last year were of autoists who failed to sound the horn when approaching intersecting ways.

'NO PRISONERS!' BATTLECRY OF 26TH MEN

New Englanders Incensed by Finding Frenchman Nailed to Door and Dismembered

"No prisoners!"

Because a French soldier was nailed by the feet to a barn door, and while suspended head downward dismembered by the Germans and left to die, a company of the 26th Division, a New England unit, has pledged itself to uphold that slogan at all times, according to Mrs. Joseph Sheppard of the Salvation Army, who has just returned to Boston from an extended period of service with the Salvation Army canteens on the Toul sector in France.

The Germans are well aware of the determination of this New England unit to spare none of the enemy, Mrs. Sheppard declared, and their hatred was augmented by the reported recent crucifixion of an American soldier, who belonged to the "fight to the death" unit.

The American doughboys are highly enthusiastic since the tide turned in their favor in the recent allied drive. Every man who is wounded or gassed has uppermost in his mind the desire to return to service at once, Mrs. Sheppard says. She related an incident where an American soldier in a counter attack had his left hand blown off.

LOST HAND; WOULDN'T QUIT.

"It didn't hurt; it felt like a mosquito bite," the doughboy told Mrs. Sheppard. Upon being told that he would be honorably discharged from the service, the soldier pleaded with the military authorities to permit him to return to the front line.

"I can fight even if I have but one hand. My left hand was blown off, not my right. I'm right handed, not left handed, and by gosh, I can throw hand grenades at those devils!" he told the hospital attendants. He was finally permitted to remain in France, pending decision by the War Department at Washington.

The American soldier is the cleanest physically, morally and mentally of all the soldiers in Europe, declared Mrs. Sheppard. And their admiration and respect for the Red Cross nurses and the Salvation Army girls is so pronounced that the Salvation Army women and their charitable sisters feel amply repaid for their efforts to be of service to the boys.

FRENCH SHOW ADMIRATION.

The French people, many of them impoverished by the war, hold American soldiers in the greatest respect. At all cemeteries where American dead lie buried French wreaths are placed on the graves—wreaths that surpass in beauty anything ever seen, Mrs. Sheppard said. The French wreath is made of beads instead of flowers, as is the American custom.

Mrs. Sheppard brought to Boston a German trench helmet and numerous other souvenirs. Most prized of her packages brought back from France is a bundle of paper containing several hundred addresses of relatives of boys in the service, who have been wounded, gassed or are ill in hospitals. Mrs. Sheppard plans to communicate with these soldiers' relatives as a part of Salvation Army service.

BOYS LOVE SWEETS.

Emphasis was placed by Mrs. Sheppard upon the absolute necessity of everybody in the United States who is able to do so adding the boys in France in every conceivable way. They love chocolates, sweets and good old-fashioned pie. Many hundreds of pies, cakes, cookies and doughnuts are made daily for the boys who return from or are going to the front line.

Mrs. Sheppard was obliged to return to Boston owing to the severe illness of her husband, Brigadier Joseph Sheppard of the Salvation Army.

N. E. EQUITABLE IS DECLARED INSOLVENT

The New England Equitable Insurance Company was today declared insolvent by Judge Loring in the Supreme Court after a hearing. The court ordered the receivers of the company to wind up its affairs.

On April 13, 1917, permanent receivers were appointed to take charge of the company, Insurance Commissioner Frank H. Hardison having satisfied the court that it was hazardous to permit the company to longer assume risks. At that time the outstanding policies amounted to $22,675,500, the liabilities were about $1,900,000 and assets approximately $1,950,000. The annual premiums were about $2,000,000.

The New England Equitable Insurance Company, engaged in every known form of insurance and had branches in nearly every State in the union. Since the receivers took charge it has been possible to approximately estimate the liabilities except as to surety bonds upon which losses may occur at any time. The expenses of the receivership to date have been $85,000.

As the accounts of the company show a surplus of over $100,000 above known liabilities, the company wants the receivership terminated, and asks that it may be allowed to resume business.

Insurance Commissioner Hardison does not believe that the margin of $100,000 is a safe one for the protection of policy-holders, and says that it will be several years before the assets can be collected and distributed.

BIG GERMAN TOBACCO FIRMS TAKEN OVER

Washington, Aug. 29.—The alien property custodian today took over the tobacco firm of H. Neuberger & Co., of New York, a $750,000 corporation, 65 per cent. of which is owned by Captain Moritz Neuberger of the German army. The firm owns interests in the Connecticut Tobacco Company, Hartford; Griffin Tobacco Company of Connecticut, and the Arthur Corey Tobacco Company of Jacksonville, Fla.

At the same time it was announced that the Translucent Window Sign Company, New York, a 100 per cent.-enemy-owned firm, has been taken over.

The enemy interests, which are in the minority, have been taken over in the International Haircloth Company of New York and the Astoria Homestead Company of New York.

Mayor's Aid Sought in Hospital Case by Donlan's Counsel

Attorney Joseph Lundy, counsel for Dr. Charles E. Donlan, who was recently removed as superintendent of the Long Island Hospital, has wired to Mayor Peters at his Summer home in Maine asking for executive relief, following the refusal on the part of the trustees to allow him on Long Island to prepare his case.

Lundy recently applied to the trustees for permission to visit the island in connection with the case he is preparing to submit to the East Boston court. He was refused the permission, it is said.

Today he sent the following telegram to Mayor Peters: "Counsel for Dr. Donlan refused right to visit Long Island institutions to prepare case, by trustees. Demand executive relief."

Mayor Peters' secretary today got the Mayor on the long distance, but His Honor declined at that time to act in the matter.

HUB HAS NO U. S. BOYS CARVED BY GERMANS

Rumors that United States soldiers are in Boston hospitals, showing the effects of German atrocities, having their tongues cut out and their eyes gouged out, were officially denied today by Major Arthur R. Austin, who has charge of the wounded soldiers arriving in Boston.

"You may say for me that no soldier has arrived in Boston with such atrocities perpetrated upon him as these rumors imply," remarked the major. "I would know it if any such cases came over here.

"I can't understand who starts these rumors. They are working up many mothers who have sons over there and should be stopped.

"Only forty-eight wounded men have arrived in Boston so far. They are not here now, but have been assigned to different hospitals through the country."

ACCUSE SOMERVILLE BOYS OF AUTO THEFT

They were captured when the car was stalled by congested traffic on Lynn boulevard.

PROSECUTOR DECLARES MRS. HALL WAS SLAIN; ACCUSES PASTOR

PEAR SHAPED MARK ON NECK SHOWN BY AUTOPSY; HALL LIED, SAYS CHESLEY

...ture could have been made by handling or removing the body."

The defendant was charged by Mr. Chesley with infatuation for other women than his wife.

TELLS OF CONSTANT QUARRELS.

"The State will show," Mr. Chesley said, "that Hall and his wife quarrelled constantly over his infatuation for other women."

The York County audience, which packed the theatrical auditorium—floor, gallery and aisles—waited eagerly to see what the county prosecutor would say regarding Hall and the Gerow sisters, Kate and Grace, of his parish, to whom he is alleged to have paid undue attention.

"Hall became rather infatuate with Kate Gerow," the prosecutor averred.

Kate Gerow's real name is Rest Green Gerow, but she is popularly known as Kate.

Mr. Chesley declared that as Mrs. Hall was being taken from her home to the Biddeford Hospital in an ambulance, after her injuries, she recovered consciousness enough to moan:

"Rest, Rest, Rest!"

This showed, Mr. Chesley said, that Hall's relations had preyed on his wife's mind.

AFFECTIONS TRANSFERRED."

After Mrs. Hall died, Hall transferred his affections to Kate Gerow's twenty-one-year-old sister Grace, Mr. Chesley continued. He made this direct charge:

"Hall hugged and kissed and proposed marriage to Grace Gerow in Portland, less than six weeks after his wife's death."

The life of the Halls since their marriage in 1902 was traced. In 1902, the prosecutor said, Hall contracted a social disease.

Mrs. Hall's health was not good. Hall told her, the prosecution ran, that he would not take care of a sick wife.

Mrs. Hall, the prosecutor added, complained to her mother of her husband's failure to provide for her.

Such were the high lights in this opening statement for the prosecution, made under more dramatic circumstances than ever attended any legal proceeding in this town.

The countryside made an early start for the hearing, which started at 10 o'clock. It was known that there would be no room for them in the opera house seats about 500. Judge Bourne had decided that "the opera house, despite its ordinary purposes of entertainment, was the only adequate assembly place in the town for so many officials, witnesses and spectators as were sure to attend. Taking a chance, many were on hand by 9 o'clock. They came from Wells by boat, where the tragedy occurred; from Kennebunk and the "Port," from Biddeford and Saco, from Sanford, from away Sarrington, where the Hall's once lived, and from many other communities.

BROUGHT THEIR LUNCHES.

They came in automobiles and horse-drawn vehicles. They came in those from a distance—with lunches put up by forehanded housewives.

By 9 o'clock at least 100 automobiles and horse vehicles were parked around the corner of Main street and Alfred road, where the Town Hall stands.

By 10 o'clock the floor and gallery seats were filled. There was no "standing room only"—every inch of the auditorium and in the narrow open space at the back. It was "Standing room only" with a mighty hard to find.

About 9:40 Judge Bourne entered and sat at his table, facing the audience. On the left of the audience sat the witnesses for the State; on the defence on settees, placed at right angles to the stage.

Opposite the witnesses, at counsel tables, were Judge George L. Emery of Biddeford, chief counsel for Hall, and H. C. Waterhouse of Kennebunk, assisting in the defence.

On the left side, in front of the witnesses, were County Attorney Chesley and Hiram Willard of Sanford, former county attorney. Mr. Willard is scheduled to take charge of any proceedings that may be necessary for the State in case Mr. Chesley, a candidate for a lieutenancy in the naval aviation service, is called away.

HALL BROUGHT BY AUTO.

Hall was brought over the road from Alfred jail, fourteen miles away, in an automobile by Sheriff Edward Roberts and Deputy Sheriff George H. Wiggin. They arrived at the Town Hall at 9:45.

Hall, not handcuffed, smiled as he stepped out of the automobile into a group of his former parishioners.

He was clad in a dark suit of ministerial black, walked upstairs to the court room and down the centre aisle of the hall, accompanied by the sheriff and deputy.

He was escorted to a seat on the left side of the enclosure, facing the jury to the audience. This placed him in front of the witnesses for the State's counsel and across the enclosure from his own counsel.

There was a buzz of comment: "There he is, there he is!"

HALL SMILES; ACTS WORN.

Although he smiled as parishioners nodded to him, his face seemed drawn and weary.

At 9:55 there was another dramatic moment. It was the entry in court of Hall's fourteen-year-old daughter Frances and her mother, Mrs. Fannie Stevens of Harrington.

Frances was apparently awed by the occasion, but she kept her girlish courage and walked bravely along. She wore a dark dress and a sailor hat, with rosebuds. Below the hem of her coat appeared tan boots and gray stockings.

Hall Bitterly Arraigned by County Prosecutor in Reviewing Tragedy

County Attorney Franklin R. Chesley, in his opening address to the court, said:

"We shall demonstrate by evidence that a crime has been committed, and, secondly that the accused minister had some connection with the crime. We shall prove that Mrs. Hall came to her death by undue violence from an unknown cause, and, secondly, that the wounds revealed by the autopsy could not have been self-inflicted.

"Hall was married in 1902. The first seven years of his married life were spent as a cook on a fishing vessel at sea.

"He began preaching in 1910. Hall's first pastorate was at Publico, Nova Scotia. A long record of family troubles and disturbed marital relations, beginning in 1910, existed up to the present time. Hall contracted a disease in 1912. His wife became ill.

SCORNED A SICK WIFE.

"Following an operation, in 1912, Hall declared he was not going to be burdened in life with a sick wife. Hall was unemployed for a long period of time. On one occasion Hall declared he was not going to support his daughter, that she could go and live with her grandmother.

"Frequent quarrels over Hall's fondness for other women, beginning in 1912, were renewed from time to time during his pastorates at Princeton, Harrington, and Wells Depot.

"Mrs. Hall did everything she could to make her home nice and happy, but she complained bitterly at times of Hall's unministerial conduct."

Attorney Emery, counsel for Hall, interposed an objection at this point. Addressing the court, Attorney Emery said: "I protest at the State's attorney quoting the dead woman in such a connection. Only Mrs. Hall's dying statement is admissible at a trial of this kind."

WARNED BY PARISHIONER.

"When Hall became minister at Wells, he was rather intimate with Kate Gerow. Hall was seen in April in company with Kate Gerow at Biddeford. His repeated attention to the younger Gerow girl was the cause of much unfavorable comment, and a parishioner admonished him regarding his conduct with Kate."

Attorney Chesley stated that on Tuesday, June 11, the night of the Hall woman's death, when Hall was discovered with his dying wife below the trestle at Little River bridge, Hall told Ernest Matthews, a railroad section foreman who came along the track, "My wife fell from the bridge; I believe she is dead. I jumped down to save her. I got her out on the bank, but I could not do any more."

Continuing, Attorney Chesley said: "Hall showed Matthews where he said his wife landed. Matthews found Mrs. Hall face down in the dirt and bushes on the bank of the shallow creek. 'I guess she's dead, all right,' Hall said," continued Chesley.

SEVERAL SENT FOR DOCTOR.

Hall helped Matthews remove Mrs. Hall's unconscious form a distance of a few feet to a more grassy spot. Hall dropped his wife's feet with a resounding thud. Then he sent Matthews for a doctor. He also sent Matthews' daughter Ida for a doctor. Winfield Light-hard came along and offered his services. He, too, was sent for a doctor.

Dr. Thomas Pitt came along in response to Matthews' efforts and ordered the woman removed to her home. Mrs. Hall remained unconscious after being taken home.

At 8:30 that night arrangements were made to take Mrs. Hall to the hospital. Hall said he guessed he wouldn't go to the hospital, because there was nothing for him to do.

"Mrs. Hall, in her trip in the ambulance to the hospital, regained consciousness long enough to repeat the name, 'Rest.' (The full name of the younger Gerow girl is Rest Green Gerow.)

"After Mrs. Hall died at the Webber Hospital, Hall accompanied her body on the train and appeared carefree on the night-hard. He whistled on the train during the trip. When the casket was opened at Mrs. Hall's mother's home at Harrington, Hall appeared to be slightly affected.

DECLARES HE LIED.

"Hall said to Mrs. Stevens: 'I shall always regret that I called Minnie to look at the fishes.' Hall told a different story concerning his wife's death to Mrs. Stevens. He lied. He lied to his wife's mother.

"To Hotel Clerk Gloson of the Harrington House, Hall told a still different story.

"Upon his return to Wells Depot, Hall renewed his intimacy with Rest Green Gerow. Following the arrest Hall told an altogether different story of the event on the fatal night.

"PROPOSED TO GRACE GEROW."

"Soon after Hall transferred his affections to Grace Gerow, Hall hugged and kissed and proposed marriage to Grace Gerow in Portland, in less than six weeks after his wife died."

Chesley described the result of the autopsy performed by Medical Examiner Charles F. Traynor of Biddeford on Mrs. Hall's body. This was the most sensational part of Chesley's opening address. Chesley said:

"The autopsy showed a compound fracture of both orbits, a puncture over the right eye into the bone, a gash three inches long on the edge of the scalp over the right eye, a fractured second left rib and a pear-shaped imprint on the throat over the windpipe. Underneath the imprint was a ruptured blood vessel.

"Three similar imprints on the left side of the throat over the windpipe. The character of these imprints indicated the cutting of the woman's throat by a human hand. The finger marks on the woman's throat were such that it would be impossible to make such marks by the handling of the body. The marks were made by great pressure, as if this woman was choked.

"I think, Your Honor, that I have shown briefly and outlined what the Commonwealth will prove by reliable witnesses."

Framingham Tax Rate $20.

The Framingham Board of Assessors have fixed the tax rate for the current year at $20. The town valuation has jumped nearly $1,500,000 over last year.

State also the name of the subdivision of your country in which you were ordinarily a resident before proceeding to the United States, which will be written in parenthesis after the name of your country, as "Great Britain (Scotland)." Draft Board Men to Get $50 to $200 Monthly

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Secretary of War Baker and Provost Marshal-General Crowder have agreed upon a basis of compensation for local and district board members ranging from $50 a month for districts of 1,100 or fewer registrants to $200 a month for districts of 6,000 or more registrants, it was announced today.

In making this decision both stated frankly that the compensation has been a minor consideration with these men and that it does not equal the value of their patriotic services to the country in the operation of the draft machine.

EXEMPTIONS TO BE BASED ON THE FACTS

Penrose Amendment, However, Dropped From Draft Bill, Saving Much Delay

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 29.—A complete agreement on the man power bill was reached this afternoon when the conferees yielded to pleas by Provost Marshal General Crowder and dropped from the bill the Penrose amendment providing that no man shall be compelled to claim exemption, but that the question shall be decided upon the facts presented in his questionnaire.

The measure now requires only the signature of the President pro-tempore of the Senate and Speaker Champ Clark of the House before it is sent to President Wilson for his signature.

General Crowder told the committee he was preparing new regulations that would carry out the purpose of the Penrose amendment without its having to be written into law.

General Crowder said that allowing the Penrose amendment to stand in the bill would greatly delay the drafting of men made liable under the extended draft ages. Questionnaires containing a printed form in which space is left for the registrant to claim exemption or deferred classification already have been shipped to local boards. Retention of the amendment would have compelled the recalling of all these questionnaires and the printing of new ones.

The action of the conferees in dropping the Penrose amendment eliminates from the bill practically every provision that the War Department felt would have embarrassed it or delayed its work, and was a decided victory for the administration.

O'HARA, REVERE OFFICER, GIVEN HEARING

Startling Testimony Given by Woman at Session Presided Over by Mayor

Startling testimony was given at the opening of the hearing of the charges preferred against Lieutenant Thomas J. O'Hara of the Revere police by Thomas W. Dowd, a recently discharged member of the force.

The hearing was held in the auditorium of the Revere City Hall, and was presided over by Mayor Alfred S. Hall. The Mayor had, as his chief legal adviser, Judge Charles Brown of the East Boston Court.

Mrs. Marion I. Davis of Oak Island, Revere, was sworn. She declared that late one evening in July, 1918, she was awakened by screams from the cottage next door, where two young girls were staying. She declared that she took an old shotgun that had not been used for twenty years and went to the door. She saw three men standing in the yard of the cottage next door and told them to run or she would shoot.

CLAIMS ABUSIVE LANGUAGE.

There followed a storm of abusive language, she declared, and three men started towards the house. The men acted in a drunken manner, according to her testimony, and declared that they were policemen. They entered the house where she and her husband were in their night clothes, she said, and the one she later identified as Lieutenant O'Hara asked:

"Are you a married woman?"

Mrs. Davis declared that she was, and was told to get her marriage certificate. She started for the next room, but was called back and Lieutenant O'Hara, showing his own gun, declared that she had better not shoot them or she would get shot herself.

The three men then left the house, she said, using language that Mrs. Davis declined to repeat. The next day, she declared, she went to the police station and identified Lieutenant O'Hara from a picture shown her there.

FRIENDLY GAME OF POKER.

Lieutenant O'Hara was represented by Attorney Barnard Carpenter.

Mrs. Bertha Middleton of No. 1378 Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, declared that on a Sunday evening in December, 1917, she was engaged in a friendly game of poker with three other women and two men at her cottage at No. 83 Centennial avenue, Revere.

Suddenly," she declared, "three policemen entered through the bathroom window and broke up the game." She claimed that Lieutenant O'Hara took the money that was on the table, together with her purse. He later returned the purse, but she has never seen any of the money.

PAINTED GIRLS BARRED FROM VISITING CAMPS

Patchogue, L. I., Aug. 29.—So that the military police at Camp Upton will find it harder to tell modest girls from the brazen and immoral, the authorities have secured action by the village board here. In a resolution the women are asked to give up cosmetics and gaudy clothes.

The board has also suggested the arrest of unchaperoned misses caught strolling near the camp after 9 p. m. Dr. Frank Overton, State Sanitary Commissioner, backed the anti-cosmetic resolution.

"What shall the girls use to protect their complexions?" he was asked.

"Soap," he replied laconically.

670 SOLDIERS NATURALIZED AT AYER

Camp Devens, Ayer, Aug. 29.—Scenes such as have never before been witnessed in a courtroom occurred at the special sitting of the United States Circuit Court for the naturalization of 670 soldiers as citizens, when they cheered the country and Judge George H. Bingham, presiding justice, who administered the oath.

With a band playing and men on their feet cheering the flag and court, Major Barratt O'Hara, former Lieutenant-Governor of Illinois, explained the benefits the men derived by becoming citizens, and the right they had to glory in the fact that they were a uniform.

The session opened and closed with the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the band of the 26th Regiment while the entire audience stood at attention and during intermissions of calling men in companies the band rendered several selections.

Major-General McCain, commander general of the division and camp, had an opportunity of witnessing the enthusiasm of the men as they cheered for several minutes, led by Major O'Hara, who was on the platform standing at the side of Judge Bingham.

All the men accepted as citizens were from the depot brigade, the oath being administered by Judge Bingham after each had been given the opportunity of withdrawing his application if he did not desire to become a citizen of this country. Nine nationalities were represented.

Judge Bingham was accompanied by Clerk James S. Allen, Marshal John J. Mitchell, Deputies Charles Farrell and Benjamin Scully, and James Farrell, chief examiner for New England.

Judge Bingham congratulated the men that they were to fight for principles unequaled by any nation on the globe.

The engineers of the division are being organized and trained at another camp, as are the heavy and field artillery branches and when all are sufficiently organized will be reassembled for the trip across.

CROZIER SURPRISED TOUR OF DEVENS

Major-General William Crozier, commanding the Department of the Northeast, has just returned from his first visit to Camp Devens.

"It's truly wonderful," he said today, "what has been accomplished here in so short a time. While all cantonments look alike to you as you are approaching them, it is well to note that we have sixteen of such cantonments as Camp Devens represents.

EDITORIAL.

Foreign born citizens drafted for service in the army and given the opportunity of becoming citizens in a short time are taking advantage of the opportunity and if the enthusiasm of the men given the oath at the United States Court session at Camp Devens is any criterion, the American army will be composed of fighters that will not stop until they reach the Kaiser.

Anxious to get overseas, yet knowing it is impossible without being a citizen, all are anxious to get their papers and be permitted to get in the front line.

It is that kind of enthusiasm that will win the war and young Americans to be drafted or about to register for service should set an example for their foreign brothers to patterns after their enthusiasm.

SAILORS' BANK MAKES HIT AT RADIO SCHOOL

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

U. S. Naval Radio School, Cambridge, Aug. 29.—Several months ago one of the sailors strolled up to the canteen and told a hard-luck story to one of the young women attendants of having lost a large part of a semi-monthly pay from Uncle Sam.

She passed the story on to Mrs. Sidney Gulick, who immediately evolved the idea of a sailors' bank. This was soon started and the Radio boys began to make use of it.

The business of the bank has now developed to such an extent that A. Cambridge business man, James H. Keane, has been drafted to take charge of the work. The total deposits at the present time amount to over $5,000, and the last time that Paymaster Lathrop opened up his big safe the bank sent more than $3,000 to the homes of the boys.

"What's the matter with the 'pups' of the neighboring training camps?" inquires the school paper, The Oscillator. "Have they all been bitten by military branches and when all are sufficiently organized will be reassembled for the trip across.

Captain Harrison M. Duffill, assistant division quartermaster, has been advanced to major.

SOLDIER'S WIFE BITTEN BY MAN ON WAY HOME

Mrs. Ethel Standish, Working While Husband Fights, Attacked in Lynn

Mrs. Ethel Standish, who is working as clerk in a Boston drugstore to support herself and her child while her young husband is fighting for his home and country in France, was attacked early today in Lynn by a man who bit her on the left cheek.

Mrs. Standish fought her way free, ran and found three policemen, who hurried in chase of her assailant.

The biter had escaped. Mrs. Standish described him as a man of about twenty-five, dressed in good clothes but wearing no collar. She recalled his suit as a blue one with brass buttons, such as a trainman or trolleyman might wear.

The Standishes moved to Lynn from Mansfield five months ago. Standish went to war last June. Mrs. Standish sent her child to board with her parents in Mansfield and obtained work in a drugstore. Some nights she works so late that she has to take a midnight train for Lynn on the Narrow Gauge road. Her home is at No. 71 Central street.

She is twenty-six years old. As she got out of the Lynn terminal soon after midnight she was accosted by the collarless fellow, who said: "Can I see you home, kid?"

"No!" replied Mrs. Standish shortly. But the chap followed, caught up with her and kept asking if he might not walk with her.

Mrs. Standish hurried along, hoping that a policeman would appear. As she walked under the Boston & Maine railroad bridge, which spans Market street, the pursuer suddenly threw one arm around her neck, bent her head backward and bit her on the cheek.

After the assailant had escaped and Mrs. Standish had been taken home by the police she found that the assailant had left the marks of two teeth on her cheek, breaking the skin.

Mrs. Standish was so upset by her experience that she was unable to go to work today.

PRICE FIXING APPLIES TO ALL THE ALLIES

SAYS GOVERNOR GRAHAM AGREED TO QUIT OFFICE

Bellows Falls, Vt., Aug. 29.—The sub-committee of the Vermont State Republican committee appointed at a meeting in Burlington on Aug. 16 to visit Governor Horace F. Graham and ask him to resign because of an alleged shortage of $20,000 while he was State Auditor, has reported the secretary of the State committee Colonel John R. Paddock of Swanton. The report is signed by J. R. ... of St. Johnsbury, chairman of the State committee.

The Danger of Imitations.

AN OHIO druggist writes to "The Practical Druggist," a prominent New York Drug Journal, as follows: "Please furnish formula for Castoria. All the formulas I have worked with are either ineffective or disagreeable to administer."

To this "The Practical Druggist" replies: "We do not supply formulas for proprietary articles. We couldn't if we wanted to. Your experience with imitative formulas is not surprising, but just what is to be expected. When Castoria is wanted, why not supply the genuine. If you make a substitute, it is not fair or right to label it Castoria. We can give you all sorts of laxative preparations for children, but not Castoria, and we think a mother who asks for Castoria would not feel kindly toward you if you gave her your own product under such a name."

No mother with a spark of affection for her child will overlook the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher when buying Castoria.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Extracts from Letters by Grateful Parents to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Mrs. Wm. Palmer, Sterling, Ill., says: "Your Castoria has been my friend for twenty years. I could not keep my children well without it. I cannot speak too highly of your wonderful remedy."

Mrs. Frank H. Cafferty, of Providence, R. I., says: "If all young mothers would use Castoria it will bring up their child. My nurse and doctor can also tell what your Castoria can do."

Howard A. Banks, of Hickory, N. C., says: "Your Castoria is the only physic we ever give our three babies. The fact that we use it promptly is probably the reason we never have to use any other."

Mrs. A. J. Nelson, of Waco, Texas, says: "Enclosed you will find a picture of 'Our little Castoria boy.' When a week old I ordered your Castoria for him, and I have never been up a night with him since."

Mrs. Eva Ott Melin, of Jersey City, N. J., says: "I attribute the present excellent condition of my baby to your Castoria which he has been using since he was three weeks old. I have not lost a night's sleep in seven months."

The story that baffled a whole editorial staff

The manuscript was read by each of the editors and the extraordinary tale baffled completely this entire staff of trained readers. Not one of them was able to tell what would happen next in "The Web of the Spider" by Arthur Somers Roche. Will it baffle you?

Full of mystery, full of excitement, full of intrigue, this story of Clyde Vernon, trusted employee of the Department of State, who becomes involved with a powerful clique of German spies in New York and Washington, achieves a new note of distinction in fiction. It is a war story but it will relieve the tension of war.

In the same issue: "Sisters", the best story Kathleen Norris has ever written; "The Strayed House" by Mary Heaton Vorse: "Good Luck" by Susan Glaspell; "The Women of France" by Madeleine Z. Doty,

Also "Holding the Real First Line", the truth about women munition workers. The famous Good Housekeeping Institute and 16 pages of newest fashions.

SCHWAB MEANT NOTHING TO 'ZEKE'

By FREDERICK ROCHE.

Bath, Me., Aug. 29.—Charles M. Schwab and Governor Carl Milliken mean nothin in the life of Zeke Nikerson, who operates a handcar at the Texas Steamship Company.

While the two distinguished visitors wandered through the yards today, Zeke kept right on running his handcar. He shoved them off the tracks.

But when Luke Jones, his foreman, came along, Zeke deigned his car and tipped his hat. "That's Charles M. Schwab and Governor Milliken," a fellow workman told Zeke. "He ain't nothing in my young life," said Zeke, "but Luke's my foreman."

SHORT AND SHARP ARGUMENT.

Mr. Schwab, whose trip here is to try and make eight ships grow where but four were planted, smiled invitingly at the women he passed in the shipyards. Having almost worn out his smile without receiving any token in reply, he turned to one of his party and said, "Gee, but the Maine climate is cold."

When, however, he began to discuss with W. A. Thompson, Jr., president of the Texas Steamship Company, plans for the future things warmed up.

Following a declaration from President Thompson that his company could not afford to pay for housing more help, there was a heated but brief argument.

"If we've got to expend so much to build houses," declared Mr. Schwab, "we'll go to some place where the houses are already built and put our money into shipyards instead."

TOO BUSY TO MAKE SPEECH.

At this point Zeke Nikerson's handcar ended the argument by driving the party off the tracks on which they had been standing.

Later President Thompson promised to turn over eight ships next year. "That's the talk," exclaimed Mr. Schwab, patting his back and smiling more broadly than before.

Having secured promise of the eight ships and declined several times to address the busy but undemonstrative workmen, Mr. Schwab, accompanied by Charles Piez, H. B. Heinl, Frederick Conlon and John Miller, left for Portland by auto.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN FOUND UNCONSCIOUS

An unidentified man about forty years old was found unconscious today in the Readville station of the New Haven road. He was taken to the Hyde Park police station, where Dr. Charles F. Stack declared that he was suffering from cerebral hemmorages. He was removed to the Boston City Hospital, where he has not yet recovered consciousness. His clothes bore the trademark of a Portland, Me., clothing concern.

GOVERNOR GOODRICH'S CONDITION SERIOUS

Indianapolis, Aug. 29.—Governor James P. Goodrich is in a serious condition at St. Vincent's Hospital as a result of an automobile accident last evening, in which he suffered severe injuries. It was stated at the hospital today that the Governor had been sleeping all night and was resting easy.

LOSING TO STEPHENS, ROLPH BEATS HENEY

San Francisco, Aug. 29.—Governor William D. Stephens has defeated Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco for the Republican nomination for Governor and Rolph has defeated Francis J. Heney for the Democratic nomination.

Stephens' lead over Rolph is about 12,000. Under the law, as amended in the last legislature, Rolph cannot run as the Democratic nominee at the coming election because he lost the Republican nomination and he is registered as a Republican. He will try to get his name on the ballot by petition and make the race independently.

POISON FOUND IN BODY OF MISS GAY

Lawrence, Aug. 29.—Traces of poison are said to have been found in the stomach of Miss Florence M. Gay, teacher at the Abbot Academy for Girls, whose body was recently exhumed, it became known today.

According to District Attorney Henry G. Wells of Essex County, the autopsy by Prof. Whitney of Harvard confirmed this.

Mrs. Bessie May Skeels of this city, who nursed Miss Gay through her last illness, is held upon a charge of larceny of jewelry from the dead woman's estate.

Mrs. Skeels is still at the Lawrence Hospital, where she was taken following her arrest in her Chestnut street apartment. The police say that she attempted suicide by poison in order to avoid arrest. Her arraignment on the charge of larceny will take place when the Grand Jury convenes in about two weeks.

Professor Whitney's report is in the hands of the District Attorney and it is said that evidence has been obtained in Andover and in Bayonne, N. J., by the State police which will play an important part in the coming trial.

Mrs. Skeels, whose husband died some time ago, was engaged to marry Alfred J. Lundgren of Andover. The wedding was to take place next week. Lundgren stoutly defends the accused nurse.

Mrs. Skeels became a nurse in Andover shortly after the death of her first husband. She had attended Miss Gay for several weeks. The loss of costly jewelry and effects was discovered by relatives of the teacher at the time of her death. Mrs. Skeels shortly afterward departed for Bayonne, N. J., to attend a relative.

Investigation under way for several weeks is said to have led to the finding of several of the missing valuables. It also led to the exhuming of the body of the dead teacher.

Dr. Charles E. Abbott of Andover, the family physician, is expected to be an important witness in the case. He attended the woman for several months during her last illness.

FIND BORDEN'S BODY IN RUINS AT REVERE

What is believed to be the body of Captain Clarence F. Borden of the Revere Fire Department, who lost his life while fighting the $400,000 blaze at Revere yesterday, was found today by patrolman Michael J. Hartigan of the Revere police, under the debris of the Nautical Gardens, where he was last seen alive. Revere physicians who viewed the charred figure declared that it's that of a human body. Medical Examiner George B. Magrath was called.

SEDITION PLOT BARED BY U.S. AGENTS

By International News Service.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—An American coup here has revealed a great sedition plot.

Upwards of two million letters and other mailed documents have been seized under the "spy act" —all of alleged seditious import—on 300 search warrants issued secretly to postoffice inspectors co-operating with United States Attorney Charles F. Clyne, it became known today.

The evidence is said to show: That the Socialist party is attempting to raise a million-dollar fund with a view to electing anti-war candidates this Fall; that from Chicago has been directed the raising of defence funds for L. W. Rogers, Socialist and draft evaders; that direct opposition to the war program, to enlistments and the operation of industries has been promulgated; that persons convicted of sedition and draft-law evasion are being cared for and being encouraged while in prison through funds being raised through the use of the mails.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

The Obliging Mr. Mason Finds He Has Just the Place for the Bridal Couple to Make Their Home

By Ann Lisle

(Copyright, 1918, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CHAPTER X.

"ANOTHER — woman? Little Anne, Little Anne, you are my woman—the one woman for me—now and forever. You must understand that. And I can't—even protect you from poverty."

I wanted to shout with relief—so that was all, money! I tried for a light note:

"A first lieutenant's pay isn't exactly starvation wages."

Jim's eyes hardened, his mouth set:

"Whatever happens you shall have that much anyway."

I knew that in his heart he was making a sacred promise—dimly sensed also that there was something more than money troubling Jim. What was it? I didn't dare ask—then.

The Government had been allowing Jim $35 a month for rent while he was a bachelor first lieutenant. I decided that if would probably give him about $45 for "self and wife," and that I must find a little apartment for that sum. We couldn't dig deeper into our salary for rent.

It was impossible to discuss the matter with Jim, for the shadow of unhappiness and nervousness was always winging its way across his face. "Fearless Jim" seldom smiled now—these days he wasn't fearless, I could see that. So I did not annoy him with questions.

Forty-five dollars a month didn't impress the first real estate agent very favorably.

All Over Town

I went a weary round of offices and finally, at the fourth, procured a list of apartments ranging in rental from forty dollars a month to sixty-five dollars. Why I took the beyond-the-dreams-of-avarice-sixty-five-dollar list I never knew!

Then I traveled from one end of the town to the other. I saw "walk-ups," with dark halls and great, large, dreary rooms—fifty-three dollars and fifty cents. There were apartments with no electricity, apartments with ancient plumbing, apartments from which I could hear the rear of the "el," apartments so far from street car and subway that I dare not contemplate walking to and fro on a slippery wintry day—that is, I didn't dare contemplate the walk for my Jim with his shattered ankle bone.

Two days of weary search. Two days of mysterious "business" that took all my husband's time. Quiet evenings, when each of us was evidently trying to hide some pain or disappointment from the other.

Then I decided to go down to the Washington Square neighborhood and hunt about for myself. I had heard of a wonderful place where apartments went for as little as six dollars a month. But I found that the place and the alley were alleys indeed; that the rentals were far, far higher than tradition had said, and that both had long waiting lists.

Disconsolate I wandered over to the avenue—I wanted to get out of the atmosphere of smocked girls with short, bobbed hair and anaemic men with long, bobbed hair. And then—— I heard a husky little voice cry from a car that was drawing near the curb:

"Why, it's Jim's wife! Mrs. Harrison! Anne—Anne!"

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "chummy roadster," enamelled blue. She herself, was all in soft gray, with beads and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a copper brown Pekinese than ever in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

Ordered Lavishly

They dragged me to lunch with them. They ordered lavishly and quite without asking me what I preferred. They questioned me about where we were staying and what I was doing down near the Arch. When I told them that Jim and I were at the Waldorf on way exchanged glances that were almost —audible.

When I told them that I was "house hunting" Evelyn was fairly inspired.

"I'll take you straight to Cousin Tom. He's the biggest real estate agent in these parts. Sally you charter a taxi for the rest of your trip while I superintend Anne's search for a home."

Sally smiled jazily. Then her eyes narrowed. "It's nice of you, Evvy. It's like you too—ditching me without a by your leave, while you go out to find Jim a home."

Evelyn didn't answer. She only looked like a wistful child whose toys were all being taken from her by a big bully.

Sally paid the check. I offered to stand my share—offered with throbbing heart—but Sally waved the subject away indifferently.

Evelyn explained Tom had an office that looked like an interior decorator's studio. He proved to be a calculating man with lips a bit too full and eyes a bit too narrow. He was big and indolent in the movements of his body, but his face had a rapier-like quality. And when he looked at me I felt that he knew what color my petticoat was and how much money there was in my bag.

Evelyn stated the case.

Mr. Mason studied me narrowly, and asked:

"What are you planning to pay?"

I felt myself blushing. How could I expose Jim's pride to these people?

"You know what the government allows a first lieutenant," I said—striving for a light tone.

"Very well, then. And I know, too, that Jim has the tastes of a—general. He should have married a rich girl." Tom Mason shifted his glance to his cousin's face and spoke.

But Evelyn sat with downcast eyes. Finally she spoke in that husky little voice of hers. She put her words slowly as if feeling her way—being delicate.

To Be Continued.

WONDERFUL BODIES

By Brice Belden, M. D.

WE have come, in the Bible, to an arrangement whereby each individual is to be called upon in a more intensive manner than ever before to play his part as an essential social unit, and in the part that he plays specialized power ranks foremost.

This, after all, is only an imitation of what goes on all the time in our bodies.

All the tissues of the body are made up of cells, and the particular character and function of a given kind of tissue depend upon the nature of the cells that make it up.

Thus we have nerve cells, bone cells, muscle cells, skin cells, white fibrous tissue cells, yellow elastic tissue cells, connective tissue cells, etc.

White fibrous tissue lines the joints and constitutes the heart valves. Yellow elastic tissue occurs in the blood vessel tunics and ligaments. Connective tissue is the framework holding all sorts of tissues and structures together.

In the case of important organs, such as the liver, heart, kidneys, spleen, brain, glands, etc., specialized cells expertly respond to the various stimuli which act upon them, and we get definite functional effects.

Every cell in the body has a definite job assigned to it, so that the human body as a whole may be regarded as a kind of industrial democracy—and the president is yourself.

The job of the red cells or corpuscles of the blood is to carry the coloring matter of that fluid, which, in turn has the property of carrying oxygen to the tissues in general. The job of the white cells or corpuscles is to attack and destroy bacteria and to act as scavengers; that is, they remove dead tissue.

HOW TO ACQUIRE HAIR BEAUTY

It can enjoy a delightful shampoo with very little effort and for a very trifling cost, if you get from your druggist a package of Canthrox and dissolve a teaspoonful of a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply to the entire hair instead of just the top of the head. Your shampoo is now ready.

Just pour a little at a time on the scalp and hair until both are entirely covered by the daintily perfumed preparation that thoroughly dissolves and removes every bit of dandruff, excess oil and dirt. After rinsing the hair dries quickly with a fluffiness that makes it seem heavier than it is, and takes on a rich luster and a softness that makes arranging it a pleasure.—Advertisement.

HOW TO DRY PEPPERS

By Ellen I. Kelley.

(Director, Department of Household Science, National War Garden Commission).

STEAM peppers until skin softens or piece in a pan in oven and heat until skin blisters. Peel, split in half, take out seed, and spread on paper or thin muslin in trays or on boards. Start drying. If artificial heat is used, at 110 degrees F. and raise gradually to 140 degrees F., maintaining 140 degrees F. to the end of the process.

Thick fleshed peppers, such as pimientos, must be dried very slowly and evenly. Small varieties of red peppers may be spread in the sun until wilted, and the process finished in a drier at 140 degrees F.; or they may be entirely dried in the sun. Large peppers, instead of being halved, may also be shredded, according to the probable uses in cooking. Again, large peppers are sometimes dried whole. String them on stout thread, over the kitchen stove and hang them up to dry.

DRYING OKRA.

Small, tender pods are sometimes strung on stout thread and hung over the stove to dry. Heat in oven a short time before storing.

The treatment specially recommended for okra, however, is to blanch in boiling water for 3 minutes. Use ½ of a level teaspoonful of soda to each gallon of water.

The drying may be started at 110 degrees F. and raised gradually to 140 degrees F., but an initial temperature of 125 degrees F. and held at 135 degrees F. has been demonstrated.

The Retort Court-eous

Near a court house in a country town there was a common. During a trial a barrister was in the middle of his speech for the defence, when a donkey outside began to bray. The judge, a noted wit, put up his hand at this juncture and said to the counsel: "Kindly stop a minute. I am unable to hear two at once." A little later, while the judge was summing up, the donkey again brayed, and the counsel stood up and said: "Would your lordship mind speaking a little louder? There is an echo in court."

Thought Him Safe

Little Tobias had been told, with sundry sound slaps, that he was on no account to fight. So when he came in from school one day with, metaphorically speaking, "torn sails and shattered deck," his fond mother was riled.

"Tobias," she said, "where did you get that black eye? Didn't I tell you good little boys never fight?"

"Yes, 'an I believed you ma," said Tobias, "I was sure he was a good little boy till I hit him, then I found he wasn't."

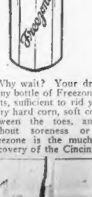
Hurt? No, not one bit! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching then you lift that bothersome corn right off. Yes magic! Costs only a few cents.



Why wait? Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of Freezone for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without soreness or irritation. Freezone is the much talked of discovery of the Cincinnati genius.

CLOTHES USEFUL IN HOT WEATHER

By Rita Stuyvesant

FOR the hot days the little tots of three and four years need dainty togs that are both cool and comfortable. Children grow so rapidly that it is difficult to keep them clothed, so an extra frock at this season is indeed welcome, if you want your kiddie to look her "Sunday best."

And the little brother, too, must not be forgotten when the smart clothes are being planned. This season, when many women are making their children's clothes, there are some delightfully simple models that will be a joy to the juvenile heart.

A dainty dress of Persian lawn for a girl of four was recently displayed in one of the best children's shops on the avenue and was priced at two figures. Its charm was in a bit of pink cotton embroidery and a pink sash and could easily be copied by the thrifty mother who "adores" pretty clothes.

To copy it only two yards of lawn is needed. The dress is a one-piece model, with a wide tuck over each shoulder, stitched to the waistline both front and back, forming a sort of panel. Pretty pink French knots are worked in an attractive design on the front and "go" very quickly.

Of course, the sleeves are kimono style, cut in one with the body, and there are cunning little turned back cuffs, ruffled and trimmed with narrow lace. The round neck is also finished with a lace-edged frill, which is caught down to the dress with a line of stitching and button-holed around with pink cotton. In this way the frills will not roll over and get crumpled. A dainty sash of pink satin is attached at either side of the front panel and tied in a pert bow in the back.

This extremely dainty little frock might also be fashioned of colored organdie in pale shades of pink, blue, corn or lettuce green, with Swiss French knots of a contrasting color. Instead of the ribbon sash, one of organdie, picot on the edge, would mark the dress decidedly 1918.

The "youngest man" of the family should not be forgotten, and there is a very good-looking pair of rompers waiting for mother to make for him. Strong white ripplette or Mother Goose cloth in pink might be chosen, with a bit of embroidery for good measure.

Cut in one piece, these new "dress-up" rompers are not buttoned across the back at the belt, but are fastened with "snappers" at the bottom in a curve. To avoid the pressure of elastic on the little legs there are facings, also finished with snap-hooks. A belt and sleeve trimmings are cut from a contrasting color and are set on with "blanket" stitch in blue cotton. A charmingly quaint design of rosebuds and dots, worked in the colored cotton, makes a smart decoration.

For little folks who need an extra frock to finish the season, one that will be dressy and yet inexpensive, a busy mother will do well to choose either of these fashionable frocks.

A Thrilling Story of an American Girl and German Intrigue in This Country

CHAPTER XIV

LUTCHESTER, in all appearance, remained sublimely unconscious of the tension which his words and appearance seemed to have created. He had strolled a little further into the room, and was looking down at the packet which he still held.

"You are wondering how I got hold of this, of course?" he observed. "Just one of those simple little coincidences which either mean a great deal or nothing at all."

"How did you know it was mine?" Pamela asked, almost under her breath.

"I'll explain," Lutchester continued, "I was in the lobby of the hotel, a few minutes ago, when I heard the fire bell outside. I hurried out and watched the engines go by from the sidewalk. I have always been rather interested in—"

Please Go On

"Never mind that, please. Go on," Pamela asked, almost under her breath.

"Certainly," Lutchester assented. "On the way back, then, I saw a little Japanese, who was coming out of the hotel, knocked down by a taxicab which skidded nearly into the door. I don't think he was badly hurt—I'm not even sure that he was hurt at all. I picked up this packet from the spot where he had been lying, and I was on the point of taking it to the office when I saw your name upon it. Miss Van Teyl, in what seemed to me to be your own handwriting, so I thought I'd bring it up."

He laid it upon the table. Pamela's eyes seemed fastened upon it. She turned it over nervously.

"It is very kind of you, Mr. Lutchester," she murmured.

"I'll be perfectly frank," he went on, "I should have found out where the little man who dropped it had disappeared to, and restored it to him, but I fancied—of course, I may have been wrong—that you and he were having some sort of a disagreement, a few minutes ago, when I happened to come in. Anyway, that was in my mind, and I thought I'd run no risks."

"You did the very kindest and most considerate thing," Pamela declared.

"The little Japanese must have been our new valet," James Van Teyl observed. "I'm beginning to think that he is not going to be much of an acquisition."

"You'll probably see something of him in a few minutes," Lutchester remarked. "I will wish you good night, Miss Van Teyl. Good night!"

Van Teyl Numb

Pamela's reiterated thanks were murmured and perfunctory. Even James Van Teyl's hospitable instincts seemed numbed. They allowed Lutchester to depart with scarcely a word. With the closing of the door, speech brought them some relief from a state of tension which was becoming intolerable. Even then Fischer at first said nothing. He had risen noiselessly to his feet, his right hand was in the sidepocket of his coat, his eyes were fixed upon the table.

"So this is the way you insulated upon a valet!" James Van Teyl exclaimed, his voice thick with anger. "He's planted here to rob for you! Is that it, eh, Fischer?"

To Be Continued.

Alkali In Soap Bad for the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can buy.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

Nuxated Iron Should Be Prescribed By Every Physician

SAYS FORMER HEALTH COMMISSIONER WILLIAM R. KERR

Attributes his own great physical activity today at over 60 years of age, largely to his personal use of Nuxated Iron.

It will increase the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks' time, in many instances.

Investigation shows that the advice of Commissioner Kerr is being followed by many physicians, and it is conservatively estimated that over three million people annually, in this country alone, are now taking Nuxated Iron as a tonic, strength and blood builder. Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "Commissioner Kerr is to be commended on handing out this statement on Nuxated Iron for public print. I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their red blood corpuscles, without ever realizing the real and true cause of their trouble. Without rich red blood your food does not get assimilated, and consequently does not nourish the body, somewhat like corn passes through the body, somewhat like corn passes through the body somewhat like corn passes through the body somewhat like corn passes through the body

EDNA TEMPLE, dainty "Maytime" star, who carries saccharine case in these times of war.

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Edna Temple hasn't applied for a patent for her saccharine case.

She says that anybody who wants to copy it may do so.

All it is is a gold topped bottle which used to contain perfume in a set of toilet articles presented to Miss Temple by an admiring friend. Now this is full of saccharine tablets.

Then she sallies into the hotel dining room. When the waiter serves the coffee and waits for the request that a spoonful of sugar be dribbled in she fools him.

Out comes the gold mounted bottle, out fall a few pellets of saccharine, and Edna Temple, the chorus lady of "Maytime," has helped Mr. Hoover win the war.

If you have seen "Maytime" you remember Miss Temple. She is the willowy siren from the Winter Garden who kidnaps old Mat Van Zandt, ninety if he is a day, and engages to marry him.

"I hope he lasts until I get him home," she murmurs as she drags him off the stage.

You might think she was that kind of a girl off the stage, for it doesn't seem like acting. You can imagine her as consuming champagne, not conserving sugar.

That's where you are wrong. Miss Temple is very demure. Her father is the stage manager of "Maytime," and she thinks champagne is a color, not a drink. And she does so wish to help the war.

COLONEL MILNE TELLS OF FALL OF BAGDAD

Lieutenant-Colonel Wardlaw Milne, commander of the Bombay Garrison Artillery of the Indian Defence Force, who was with the British forces in the victorious Mesopotamia campaign, today gave a graphic description of the enormous difficulties overcome by the British before Bagdad was finally captured, with a first-hand account of the surrender of the British at Kut-el-Amarah in April, 1916, after heroic resistance, at a luncheon given by the Boston Chamber of Commerce at the Exchange Club.

He told in detail of the British victories at Zain, Basrah, Shaiaiban and Bayisiyeh, and led up to the capture by the British of Kut-el-Amarah in September, 1915, and the apparent opening of the road to Bagdad. The flooded condition of the country and the arrival of large reinforcements to the enemy, however, compelled the British to fall back within the town of Kut, and the Turks invested the place early in December.

"From December 5, 1915, to April 29, 1916, the town was daily under shell fire. The food supply dwindled rapidly, scurvy and pneumonia killed many, and by the beginning of April famine stalked through the town. Finally after the news of constant failures had been received, General Townsend was ordered to open negotiations for surrender in April, and the town fell on April 29.

General Sir Stanley Maude took command of the British forces in Mesopotamia in August, 1916, and in February, 1917, Kut was retaken. Then began the long and stubbornly resisted march north, and in March, 1917, the British were before Bagdad, which soon succumbed.

"Mesopotamia, occupying a unique position, may once again see the products of its soil moving to supply the needs of Egypt, Persia, India and beyond," the speaker concluded.

PLAN TO HONOR MOTHERS OF OUR HEROES

Mothers of Boston's boys killed in France will be honored by city and state on Heroes Day if the city adopts the suggestion of the Boston AMERICAN and celebrates this day as it is being celebrated in other big cities of the country.

With the return of Mayor Peters from his vacation it is hoped that His Honor will issue a proclamation setting aside a certain day for the observance.

New York has already selected September 1 as its Heroes Day and Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Atlanta and other big centres will hold similar celebrations. Boston, which has given as many men to the cause of liberty as any of these cities in proportion to her size, should not be behind in doing equal honor.

The AMERICAN'S suggestion for the celebration has been cordially received by prominent men of the city.

APPROVAL IS GENERAL.

From Governor McCall, who voiced his approval, down through State and city departments, all those who heard of the plan were unanimous in their approval.

It is especially suggested that the mothers of the dead soldier boys be given some mark of special distinction on Heroes Day.

Churches have in some cases already gone into the project. Several ministers will preach sermons next Sunday urging their congregations to join in the movement for the celebration of the day.

One pretty tribute to the mothers which will be carried out in the New York observance and which might well be copied in Boston, will be the presentation to each mother who has given a son to her country of a badge of honor.

The presentation will be made by Mayor Hylan at the monster patriotic meeting to be held in the Hippodrome. The badges are to be in the shape of a silver pin in the centre of which is a gold star on a sacrificial altar.

PROPOSE BIG BOSTON MEETING.

A similar meeting, at which dignitaries of church, State and city would speak, might well be held in either of Boston's largest assembly places.

Here Governor McCall, representatives of Cardinal O'Connell, Bishop Lawrence, and of the various religious denominations represented in Boston, Mayor Peters, together with high officials of the army and navy, might gather to hold fitting and appropriate exercises in honor of Boston's heroes in France.

Among those who today signified their approval of the plan are the following:

ALBERT P. LANGTRY, Secretary of State—I think that is the best suggestion I ever heard in my life. Until the wounded soldiers are seen upon our streets the war will be, to too many, 3,000 miles away. Such a day would force the people to realize that America is in this war to the limit. There is much speculation as to how many soldiers are going to France. We will send 25,000,000, if necessary, and we will never stop until the Germans bow to Grant's conditions, "Unconditional surrender."

VICTOR HEATH, chairman Boston Public Safety Committee—The suggestion of the Boston AMERICAN is in keeping with the spirit of the citizens of the city of Boston to pay every tribute possible to the men that have sacrificed their lives for the country.

COPPERS FIRM; STEEL PROVES REACTIONARY

The New York market opened strong today but soon softened and became irregular.

Rails were quiet, coppers strong and steels were reactionary.

United States Steel opened at 116¼, fell 115⅛, and then rallied to 116¾, off ⅛. Bethlehem B lost 1½, at 85¾; and Republic ⅛, at 93¼.

Amerada made a new high on this movement at 69, up ⅝; Inspiration rose ½, to 54⅝; Utah was unchanged at 84, then lost ⅝, at 89; New Haven gained ⅜, at 42⅜; Union Pacific lost ⅜, at 127½; St. Paul was unchanged at 50.

Fractional losses occurred in American Can, 47; Car & Foundry, 83⅜; Steel Foundries, 79⅝; Baldwin, 84⅝; Central Leather, 69; Distillers, 59¼; Missouri Pacific, 24, and Sinclair Oil 32⅛.

Small gains were made by Cuba Cane Sugar, 30½; Northern Ore, 37½; Texas Company, 153¼, and Westinghouse, 44. Pennsylvania lost 1⅛ at 42¼, and General Motors at 140 lost 2½.

The Boston market was strong with Gorton-New Fisheries Company listed today the feature. It nearly monopolized the tape; starting at 87, in a few minutes it was selling at 91. After rising to 31¼, it sold at 30¾.

Fairbanks gained 1⅜ at 68⅜; Booth Fisheries was up ⅝ at 87. Swift & Company was unchanged at 116½. United Fruit gained ⅜ at 130⅜, and Boston & Maine ⅛ at 38. Boston Elevated lost ⅛ at 70⅜.

Trading was dull at midday. General Motors was conspicuous, declining 10¼ points to 132, jumping to 140 and falling to 135 in a few sales. Steel Foundries sold 73¾, off 1⅜. Canadian Pacific rose ⅜ to 133½. Reading ⅛ to 90⅜ and New Haven ⅜ to 44⅛.

TRIBUTES ARE PAID TO IRISH AT DINNER

Tributes were paid to the soldiers of Irish blood and ancestry at a dinner given at the City Club in honor of Major William H. Hingston, R. A. M. C., Canadian army chaplain, and Captain Thomas F. MacMahon, M. C., of the Irish Guards. About fifty friends were present, among them Major Kenneth D. Marlatt, head of the British-Canadian Mission. Following the banquet a score of friends of Captain MacMahon and Major Hingston were entertained at the University Club. Among the speakers were William S. McNary, Patrick Rowan, former alderman, and William J. Dooley, gentleman-in-waiting to Cardinal O'Connell.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

The world's series third basemen are the worst lot of players, when doped against the pitching they must face, in the fielding sense, that ever participated in such an event.

The class of the third basers is scarcely that of the Class AA players of a year ago, and not one of them is within fifty points of the men who participated in the 1917 championships.

Deal gives Chicago rather a large lead over the Red Sox and that is due to his known ability to field and the fact that he is the kind of a batter liable to spring a surprise by making a stab when least expected.

WONT PUMMEL SOX PITCHERS.

Deal is a fielder, who has been much underrated by the experts, largely because he has been a weak hitter during his big league career, and, even being with a winning club, his scoring has not served to improve his batting.

He is a normal 225 hitter in the big leagues, and does not figure to hit nearly that well against Red Sox pitching which will be at least 20 per cent. higher than the average of National League twirling combination.

Third base has been the weakest spot in the Red Sox team all year, and, if Barrow is rated as a great manager, it should be largely upon the manner in which he has kept plugging that vital position in the defensive team.

He tried and failed with McInnis, he has tried all sorts of men—high in all—anyone that came along, and he has found that only Shanks, who is smart and a fair man in all respects, has never been a major league class, was the most satisfactory in steady work.

But for a world's series, against the pitching of the Cubs, Coffey figures to be ground-gained, as a one respect and that is that he ought to do fairly well against Vaughn and Tyler, although either Hendrix or Douglas would make him no a pushover with his bat.

UP TO BOX BRIGADE.

However, in figuring we must calculate upon the resourcefulness of Barrow in gap-plugging. He has Wally Schang, who was tried at third and found wanting, and remember that Schang can hit left-handed pitching and he can wallop that ball hard when he gets hold of it.

I am figuring that Barrow is certain to use Schang at third base in some of the games, and that Agnew will do practically all the catching.

The era, it now seems, will be decided on pitching, but even with the best of pitching against weak hitting teams there is a huge danger in having a leaky infield.

Chicago has the better constructed infield for defensive work, regardless of whether Zeider or Pick plays second. It lacks class, but is better balanced.

Tomorrow we will study the catchers, and remember that the catcher's position ranks is almost twice as valuable as any one of the infielders—and in this series even more vital to the team.

TRENCH FIGHT IS TO BE STAGED AT BIG MEET

Ever see a "trench" fight?

It's the new thing in sports and probably gets its first name from the fact that the contestants go over the top—not with a gun but with boxing gloves.

It will be shown to the public for the first time at the inter-Army and Navy athletic meet, at Harvard Stadium, one week from Saturday under the auspices of the War Camp Community Service.

The "trench" fight is along the lines of the "battle royal" that has so often thrill and gotta fans. Eight men are stationed on either side of a wooden platform, standing about three feet from the ground, and thirty feet long and five feet wide.

At a given signal they go over the top and cut loose with swings and jabs. The team that has the most men standing on the table at the end of three minutes is the victor.

The "trench" fight was brought to Camp Devens by the 56th U. S. regulars who recently moved in there from a Western camp. Several army teams will enter this event.

Over 1,000 athletes will take part in the gala meet. Included in this number are many of the A. A. U. and Intercollegiate champions.

Forty thousand tickets will be distributed to the men in service and the public. The distribution began today at the office of the War Camp Community Service, 648 Little Building. Applications for tickets by mail should have an enclosed, addressed envelope, properly stamped.

Willard Refuses to Box Dempsey in Charity Go

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Jess Willard refuses to fight Jack Dempsey until after the war.

The champion today turned down an offer to battle Dempsey at Philadelphia next month at a benefit for returning war heroes. He was approached by Ed W. Smith, Chicago sporting writer, delegated by Philadelphia business men to get Willard's consent.

JACK DEMPSEY TAKES JOB IN SHIPYARD

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, and his manager, Jack Kearns, are the latest recruits of the shipbuilding brigade. Kearns and Dempsey are on their way to Philadelphia today to begin work in a shipyard.

Dempsey is to work at his trade of carpentering, with a little painting as a side line. Kearns will keep books and help out on the painting if he is needed.

The terms under which Dempsey and Kearns will work provide that if a match with Jess Willard or any other formidable heavyweight is made the fighter and his manager will be given a furlough.

By RINGSIDE.

Strong cards are on tap for the followers of boxing tomorrow night at the Commercial A. C. and the Crescent A. C. of Lowell. Al Girard of the North End and Charles Mitchell of Braintree will do the honors in the feature event at the Commercial A. C., while Tommy Robinson and Battling Kopin wind up the Lowell show.

In addition to the Girard-Mitchell tussle, which is scheduled for ten rounds, two other ten-rounders will be put on at the Commercial A. C. Skater Gribbin and Dave Powers and Jack Vets and Young McMahon are the pairs who will render them. Eddie Ford, the ex-amateur, takes on Jimmy McKenna of Putnam, Ct., in the curtain event at six rounds.

Tonight's card at Lowell will put up as interesting skirmish. Neither boy will enter with a world's championship by the use of his dukes, but for the rough and ready sort of milling they are about equal.

The same goes for Jack Veto, fighting boy with the heavy punch, and Johnny McGuinness of Cambridge. These are the sort, though, who give the fans a run for their money; the boys who are not afraid to mix.

Eddie Ford, a rattling good youngster in the amateurs, picks a stiff one for a starter in it. "Monty Grass" a Jimmy McKenna—speaking about McKenna, the best boxer we ever saw is a McKenna—he's an undertaker.

Robson and Kopin will be supported in the bouts, as we actors say, by the following snappy card: Frank Mullins and Boyle, who will settle the championship of Lowell, and Mike Casis of Lawrence and George Brooks of Lowell. The latter pair should prove a riot.

Pell and Richards Are Put Out of Tourney; Niles Wins Again

Forest Hills, L. I., Aug. 29.—Theodore R. Pell, Vincent Richards, sixteen-year-old boy wizard of the net; Walter T. Hayes and Ralph P. Burdick, two leading Western stars, were among those eliminated in the national singles tennis championship tournament.

Pell fell before Robert Lindley Murray, 6—2, 6—0, 6—0. Pell led off strong, but gave way before the masterly driving power of the Californian.

Burdick was forced out by Nat W. Niles of Boston. The battle was carried six sets in before the veteran finally won, 7—5, 6—4, 2—6, 7—5.

Walter Merrill Hall disposed of Hayes in a long drawn out contest, 3—6, 8—6, 6—2, 6—4, 6—4.

The two feature matches were between Richards and S. Howard Voshell and Frederick R. Alexander, veteran international, and Lieutenant Harold Throckmorton.

After Richards won two sets he allowed Voshell to take the next one without his winning a single game. The next two gets were bitterly fought; the score, 7—5, 4—6, 6—4, 6—2, 7—5.

Alexander defeated Throckmorton in a brilliant match featured by the veteran's rally after he had practically lost the contest. He was also a five-set match. The score: 2—6, 3—6, 7—5, 6—3, 6—3.

Tilden was again among the winners, taking an easy match from Conrad Doyle of Washington.

SPEAKER IS SUSPENDED FOR STRIKING CONNOLLY

Cleveland, Aug. 29.—President Dunn of the Indians has been informed by President B. B. Johnson of the American league that Tris Speaker club's "ace," stands suspended indefinitely as a result of taking a punch at Umpire Tommy Connolly in Tuesday's matinee in Philadelphia. Cleveland fans fear this may be the windup for the Indians' hod of overhauling the Red Sox.

HINGHAM STATION CREW OUTROWS PELHAM BAY

Hingham Station, Boston, crew won the one-mile cutter race at the New York A. C. regatta on the Hudson. Pelham Bay led up to within fifteen yards of the finish when it was passed by the Boston oarsmen, who won by less than half a boatlength. Fowler, Allen, Miser, Starhmer, Tinker, Crandall, Carpi, Skinner, Harlow, Wagner and E. Foster manned the whining crew.

MISS SEARS ON WINNERS' LIST AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Aug. 29.—In the twenty-second annual horse show, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the Red Cross tobacco fund, Boston and Massachusetts society were very largely winners.

In the Neptune novice class, Miss Constant Vaughan of Rosemont, Pa., won the blue ribbon with her bay mare, Dragon Fly. Frank Donovan of Boston took second prize with his bay gelding Avalon.

In the open novice, Mrs. Joseph S. Sylvester of Hanover, captured the blue ribbon with her bay mare Gay Field in a field of nine horses.

In the novice pony classes for ponies fourteen hands high, Louis K. Liggett of Boston won first prize with his bay mare Kalange.

The Sea Weed novice for jumpers was won by Miss Constance Vaughan with Silver Thread and George Hopkins of Boston took second with his chestnut gelding, Gray Dolley, belonging to Dr. Stont of Jamestown, R. I., threw her rider and fell on him, but did not injure him severely.

When Miss Eleonora Sears of Beverly Farms entered the ring on her saddle horse Radiant, she was greeted with cheers. She wore a wide-brimmed sombrero hat and rode astrictly first-class twirler to oppose easy winner in this class. Charles Jones of Wellesley, with Triggers, won second place.

In the paired ponies class Louis K. Liggett, with Falanga and Fulgore, had no trouble in getting the blue ribbon. Miss Eleonora Sears won second place with Wildfire and Bouncer.

In the tandems Miss Constant Vaughn was a winner for the third time with Whip and Supreme Polonius between 9 a. m. and 1:30 p. m.

The thoroughbred hunters brought out a large field, in which the Lanners of New York, with his bay mare Becky and his chestnut gelding Town East, won first and second prizes.

In the pony class, twelve hands high or under, Benjamin Cooke of Providence was the winner with Providence, while in the ladies' saddle class, any height, Walter H. Handley of Providence, with Derfwood Blaze took first prize, with Mrs. Hanley riding.

In the final Mrs. Joseph S. Sylvester of Hanover was winner with her bay geldings, Expressive and Excessive.

Big Red Cross Match Over Kernwood Links Saturday Afternoon

Lieutenant Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford, crack amateur golfers, will play a foursome against two of the country's best professionals, Donald Ross and Jack Shea, at the Kernwood Country Club, Salem, Saturday afternoon.

The match will formally open the club's new eighteen-hole course. The first nine holes have been in use since 1915 and are acknowledged by golfers to constitute one of the most beautiful and best laid out courses in this section of the country.

As Ross, the builder, declares that the new nine holes are even superior to the first nine, the completed eighteen should be a piece of golf architecture with few, if any, equals in the East. The course measures 6,229 yards, includes four water holes and is well bunkered.

Saturday's match will start at 2 p. m. The entire proceeds will go to the Red Cross and the Kernwood Country Club cordially invites all golfing enthusiasts to attend.

SEMI-PRO STAR TEAMS IN SOMERVILLE GAME

Two of the strongest semi-pro teams in the State, the Converse Rubber team and the Somerville A. C. will clash at the City Field, Somerville, Saturday afternoon. "Skinny" Graham, for years the crack pitcher of the Somerville B. B. C., will pitch for the visitors against his old teammates. Manager Hickey of the S. B. C. has secured the services of a pitcher to oppose the former Somerville idol.

LINART AND WILEY TAKE TEAM RACE AT REVERE

After three postponements, Nat Butler was able to pull off the fortnight evening and afternoon bicycle track. Linart and Wiley displayed amazing good form and won from Madonna and a Corey. Time—55.55 2-5.

C. Rollins, an Everett boy, took the New England professional sprint championship. John Fardig of Orient Heights was second and Tim Sullivan of New Haven, Ct., third.

READVILLE RACE MEET PUT OVER FOR A DAY

The races at Readville slated for today were put over until tomorrow on account of the rain. A double bill will be put on tomorrow with eight races on the card starting at noon.

Be Patient With the Boston Elevated Trustees

It Was Never Claimed That Public Control Practiced Legerdemain or Worked Miracles

Here is one more sample of the letters which we are receiving day by day from readers who are not inclined to be guided by the AMERICAN'S advice to be patient with the Elevated's public trustees and give them time to repair the damages that private management of this great public utility has wrought:

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

I have been a constant reader of the Boston AMERICAN ever since its establishment, and I am one of its readers who "fell" for its editorials advocating State management of the Boston Elevated Railway. I now realize how mistaken I was.

As the Elevated was bound by contract not to increase its fares beyond five cents, the State has very kindly done it for them. The proper method would have been to allow the road to go into bankruptcy, if its mismanagement was driving it there, and then force its sale to the State, or to other interested parties at an appraised value. The fare could then remain at five cents.

You have repeatedly informed your readers that the revenue obtained from the increased fares was to be spent in the interests of the public. Since August 1 the service has perceptibly deteriorated in the Cambridge Subway. Every night dozens of people must wait in the Kendall Square Station to let crowded trains pass, while the running of one more car on each train would not only obviate this, but would add greatly to the comfort of all the passengers, who now ride in sardine style.

The last train for Cambridge now leaves the South Station a few minutes before midnight, as was done last Winter. In this enlightened age, the subway should be operated for at least an hour longer, if not all night. On Saturday evening, August 10, I was one of over fifty people who entered the South Station of the Cambridge Subway at about 11:45, and owing to the fact that we had no tickets and that only one clerk was selling them, while at least one other sat in her booth figuring up accounts, we were forced to allow the last train to go without us, while a very important individual, not in uniform, officiating at the ticket chopper, insultingly ordered the crowd away, as if they were a mob who were trespassing.

We are all asked to keep a supply of tickets on hand, that the Elevated MAY ACTUALLY DO BUSINESS ON MONEY BORROWED from the public.

Can you tell your readers when they will reap any benefits from this so-styled "public management"?

WILLARD B. SAVARY.

East Cambridge, Mass.

If the author of this complaint thinks for a moment that the Boston Elevated would not in any event have obtained a seven-cent fare from the Legislature, its five-cent contract to the contrary notwithstanding, he has made very little use of his survey of American politics, for he shows a very slight understanding of the political power of a big corporation made desperate.

The alternative was not bankruptcy or reorganization on the basis of a five-cent fare. The choice was between State control with fares sufficient to supply an adequate revenue, to be reduced as soon as the economies of public administration and a return of normal conditions would permit, and private control with the same increased fare which would never be reduced, together with a continuation of all the political evils of private operation.

One of the most distressing conditions of the relations between the public and public service corporations privately controlled is the great difficulty of making such corporations pay the penalty of dissipation without making the public pay more heavily still. It is like the case of the parents of a wayward boy whom it is impossible to punish for misdemeanors without hurting the parent more than the boy is hurt. This one fact alone makes public operation of public utilities absolutely necessary.

We wonder how long Mr. Savary thinks it ought in reason to take the public trustees to correct all the accumulated faults of the private management of the last ten years. Vastly better as public control has been and always will be, it practices no legerdemain and works no miracles, nor has the AMERICAN ever pretended that it could. In the nature of things, it will take some time for the trustees to master their job, and for an up-to-date equipment to be installed and operated.

If we will be one-tenth as patient with public operation as we have been patient with private mismanagement we shall have ample reason to rejoice that we have set an example to the country of the proper way of meeting demands for increased fares.

Antiquated Weapons Used Against Gaston

As the ammunition dumps in the present somewhat ruthless campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination are apparently running low, resort is being had to rather antiquated political missile weapons. One of the rustiest dug up so far is the charge that William A. Gaston was responsible for the defeat of Mayor Collins when a candidate for re-election in 1899.

This accusation is pretty far-fetched, and has to do with things that happened a long time ago. Mr. Gaston was president of the Boston Elevated then, and the Elevated in those days did a good many things that ought not to be done and that were by no means conducive to the welfare of democracy. But such issues only live to plague men who continue in the paths of error.

To err is human, and Democrats are not in the habit of looking at the past except as it throws light on the probable future. If a candidate's present attitude and promises are satisfactory, past mistakes are always by a wise democracy forgotten, and not resurrected again unless the erring one jumps back again into his old ways.

CRUSADE TO SAVE OUR NATIONAL SPEECH

By Clara E. Laughlin

In Chicago, Miss Bertha Iles, through the Drama League, is doing a great many fine things for and with children to make their vacation time pleasanter and more profitable.

Among many interests she has either created or intensified for them is that in "better speech."

This could be taken up with great profit further East and all over the country.

The little folks "take to" it with avidity—because it has been presented to them in the right way. There are, really, few subjects in which the eager, seeking minds of children cannot be interested, if only the way to do it be understood; and Miss Iles understands.

She was telling me the other day how delightful the youngsters are and how they co-operate with her and develop one another, all through the medium of play.

She hadn't the slightest difficulty getting recruits for her "better speech" army. All the militancy of the hour became available, on demand, to fight such atrocities as "Say, listen!" "Sure!" "He ain't." "She done it." "Ma took Moll and I to the park." "Oh, boy!" and so on.

Habit of Using "Sure!"

Miss Iles told me of one small chap who had fallen into a habit of using "Sure!" for affirmations. He had almost forgotten how to say "Yes." Of course, he wasn't so dreadful a case as the folks, big and little, who habitually say "Yeh" and "Yep" and "Youbetcha." But he was pretty bad. And he knew it.

The other day he declared he was most discouraged.

"I've said 'Sure!' eighteen times this afternoon," he confessed mournfully. "Do you suppose I'll ever get over it?"

Miss Iles assured him that he would.

New Subjects Today

When our conversations were mainly of the market-place, the card-club or three-meals-a-day or dry-goods or neighborhood gossip, we seemed to get along with a very small stock of threadbare phrases, shabby exclamations, poverty-stricken adjectives, and other shoddy verbal stuff.

Then, suddenly, thousands and tens of thousands of us began discussing the most splendid ideals, the most stupendous deeds, the most staggering plans and accomplishments the world has ever conceived.

And we felt pretty much like the oft-quoted lady who at the Grand Canyon of the Arizona could only murmur: "Ain't nature swell?"

I believe the time has never been so ripe as it is now to enlist earnest interest in better speech; that more of us than ever before are dissatisfied with our poor, shoddy vocabularies, and wistful to speak as finely as we feel.

THIS FLIRT IS TORTURING HIS DEAR WIFE

By Winifred Black.

THE Pretty Girl and I went out for lunch the other day. We had rather a nice lunch, too—a salad and some eggs cooked with spinach after the French fashion and something nice and cool to finish up with, and we put our elbows on the table and took long, quiet sips of our iced tea and told each other all our hearts' dearest secrets.

But presently I noticed that the Pretty Girl was rather restless. She looked this way and that way and then she changed her seat, and I looked across the way and it was a man, or something that looked like a man. He was staring at the Pretty Girl, and once he lifted his glass and made a gesture and smiled, and the Pretty Girl and I were so angry we could not eat any more, and we hurried out of the place and forgot half of the pleasant things we were going to say and didn't have time to laugh any more that day—for the man was the husband of a girl we both knew.

I knew the girl very well, indeed, and the Pretty Girl knew her by sight, and she was sitting right at the table with the man who was trying to flirt with the Pretty Girl, and we were so sorry and so anxious for her, and so ashamed of human nature in general that we didn't know what to do with ourselves.

The girl whom he married knew all about it, too, and it was all she could do to keep from crying right there in the public restaurant.

Now what do you think of a man like that?

His Measure Is Plain

What would you do about it if you were miserable enough to be married to him? Would you try to bring him to his senses by flirting with some one yourself?

Some women do, and some of them, they say, succeed. But what about the woman who does it? Does she not cheapen herself by bringing herself down to the level of a poor, empty-headed, weak-minded creature like that?

I do hope the girl who married that man won't come to me and ask me what to do. I'm afraid I would tell her to pack up her trunk and go home just as fast as she can.

I'm afraid I'd tell her that the man who was capable of being such a cad as that was only just beginning, and before he got through he would make her suffer a thousand humiliations that would be a thousand times worse than what she feels when he sits at the table with her in a public restaurant and tries to flirt with another woman right before her very eyes.

What in the world is the matter with a man like that, anyway? What is it he is trying to do? Feed his own vanity, poor fool?

Everyone who sees him takes his measure and puts him down right where he belongs—in the rank of the cads.

Is He Worth Saving?

I shall never see that man again anywhere without wanting to tell him what I think of him—and as for the poor girl who has married him, if I were her mother or her father or her brother, I would give that man a talking to that would bring him to his senses, if he has any, and if he hasn't I would get that girl away from him just as quickly as I could order a taxi and help her pack her trunk.

What is the use of trying to do anything decent with a creature like that?

Every woman he sees despises him and every man he knows, who really is a man, feels nothing in his heart but contempt for him.

What puzzles me is, why does such a man like that marry at all?
